

Articling Opportunity

The Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH) is Canada's largest mental health and addiction teaching hospital, as well as one of the world's leading research centres in the area of addiction and mental health. CAMH combines clinical care, research, education, policy development and health promotion to help transform the lives of people affected by mental health and addiction issues. CAMH is fully affiliated with the University of Toronto, and is a Pan American Health Organization/World Health Organization Collaborating Centre.

CAMH, as a teaching hospital, strives to be a centre of academic excellence. CAMH Legal Services is doing its part to meet this objective by offering one student an articling position for the 2021-2022 articling term. The articling position is aimed at keen law students with a proven interest in the field of Health Law and, more specifically, Mental Health Law. CAMH is a complex and multi-faceted healthcare organization with both litigation and corporate legal needs. The successful applicant will be expected to work with potentially any of our nine (9) in-house legal counsel in meeting the organization's needs. The student-at-law will gain exposure to a range of work including Consent and Capacity Board hearings, Ontario Review Board hearings, appellate level court submissions, policy development, corporate governance, corporate commercial agreements, research trials, government submissions, educational initiatives and other legal writing. The aim of the articling opportunity is to offer students an opportunity to gain substantive, practical and real-life experience in health law. While all applicants will be considered, those students interested in health law and litigation are likely most suited to the role.
